

Interna supplied the interiors for the living area of a sophisticated private residence in Singapore, following all the steps of planning and production of the items created upon design of the interior decorator Cameron Woo.

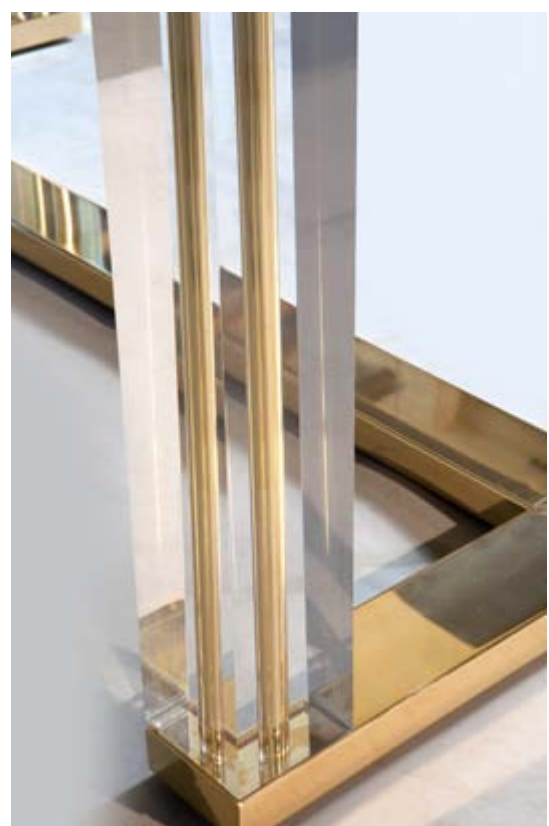

The project envisaged casegoods and upholstery, the latest made particularly soft and comfortable by dacron and natural down padding upholstered with refined fabric such as linen, velvets and silks.

Masterpiece of the Italian craftsmanship is the dining table. The top, more than 5 meters long, is made of marble and oakwood with a golden finish, whereas the structure, result of a particular casting process, is made of brass and plexiglas.

A magnetic anchoring allows for a easy change of the top: the table, in fact, has been supplied with as additional top in red lacquered finish to be used during the festivities.
